

THE WASHINGTON HERALD FOR EVERY WOMAN

EDITED BY JULIA CHANDLER MANZ

Fables of Everyday Life

The Woman-Who-Wanted-To-Be-Beautiful.

By JULIA CHANDLER MANZ.

The Woman-Who-Wanted-To-Be-Beautiful, who had been sitting in a chair by a window which commanded the city street, as she watched the rain make the asphalt of the broad thoroughfare look like a thing of satin under its touch she was thinking that the greatest thing in the world for a woman was beauty, and as it was in answer to her thought a vision came to her from out of the stillness of her room:

"If thou wilt do the things I tell thee, incomparable beauty shall be thine."

The Woman-Who-Would-Be-Beautiful, armed from the window and in, in the shadows there was a radiance, an iridescent light; shining in shape, in size the length of a man, and from his eyes came the assurance for the second time: "If thou wilt do the things I tell thee, incomparable beauty shall be thine."

The Woman-Who-Would-Be-Beautiful in the promise of the fulfillment of the desire of her heart, forgot to be afraid, and gave her word of obedience.

"Lay aside the fear which lies in thy heart, the fear of having work to do, and marry the good man and true who loves thee; the one whose character is as good as his looks, and who will be a blessing to thee and thy children."

And before she could make reply the light had faded.

More than a year had gone by since the Woman-Who-Would-Be-Beautiful had kept her word of obedience to the voice of her twilight hour. She loved the man whom she had been bidden to marry, but their translation of God's purpose of the gift of human life was not always the same. The woman objected to motherhood on the ground that it takes too much of time, and of sacrifice—this thing of giving souls human form. The man was quite willing to bear his share of the work and the sacrifice, for more than all else he wanted a family. And so, on a morning, they had quarreled bitterly, and the man had gone to his work leaving the woman in tears. Between sobs there came to her a voice from somewhere in the room, and when she lifted her head she was conscious of the Presence although her spiritual eyes were filled over by her physical transcendence so that she saw no light.

"Thou must go on doing the things I tell thee if thou wouldst have incomparable beauty," said the Presence.

"But I have, I have done your bidding," cried the Woman-Who-Would-Be-Beautiful.

"Thus far," the voice told her, "thus far only, and the journey to the land of incomparable beauty is but just begun. There are souls waiting for thee to give them expression. And when thou hast brought them into being there will follow other years of work. Thou must do it with good cheer."

"And I shall be beautiful?" questioned the woman, doubtfully.

"If thou dost grudge nothing of thyself in the giving, and grumble no whit through the years," came the promise back to her in a tone that sounded like a velvet flute-note on the air, so sweet and soft and tender was it.

Fifteen years had gone by since the coming of the first of the four. The Woman-Who-Would-Be-Beautiful knelt by the bedside of the most brilliant lad of them all; her splendid, beautiful boy; the eldest of the four; the one who gave the most wonderful promise, and prayed God for his life. And even as she prayed the lad went out into the deep mysteries of the silent night with the Angel of Death.

"I have kept faith with you," cried the Woman-Who-Would-Be-Beautiful to the Presence which stood in a circle of light when she lifted her eyes from the bed where lay the transient human shell she had given to house the soul of her boy.

"Well done," came the voice so like unto a velvet flute note. Thou hast prayed for the lad's life. He is alive and all in soul with him. He is alive to those who are yet with thee."

And because her cup was as full as it could hold of the most unutterable sorrow which touches human life, The Woman-Who-Would-Be-Beautiful forgot that she had ever wanted to be beautiful.

In the years that sped by she saw to those who were yet with her, and to them faithfully and well. Through the years she remembered that her compact with the Presence called also for good cheer in her work and she kept the faith. But the time came when the three who were left no longer were full grown and making hours for themselves. Time came when the man who had wanted them went out in the night. From the mirror in her room she saw her face with its setting of iron gray hair.

"There are friends of mine who are lonelier than thou," said the voice again. "Cheer them, and thou shalt be beautiful beyond compare."

And again The Woman-Who-Wanted-To-Be-Beautiful obeyed.

When several years more had brought a few more wrinkles to her face, and a few more white hairs to her head, The Presence found her on a night in introspective mood.

"Now," said The Woman-Who-Wanted-To-Be-Beautiful, "for years and years I have done your bidding. Where is the fulfillment of your promise? I grow old, and wrinkled, and gray, and it is because I was promised beauty beyond compare that I placed myself in your hands in the long ago."

"Thy family hath no longer need of Washing Flannel.

To keep flannels from shrinking I wash them in the following way and find it very satisfactory: Shred a piece of the best white soap, boil it in a quart of water, have ready a tubful of warm water, pour in the boiled soap and make a good lather. Then place the flannels to be washed into this, wash them thoroughly in it, but do not rub soap on them. Rinse in warm water, wring out and dry as quickly as possible in the open air out in the sun. When this is finished, iron when sufficiently dry with a warm iron.

The best thing for cleaning flannels is common soda; dampen a cloth, dip it in soda and rub the ware briskly, after which wipe dry.

DOUCET TEA GOWN.

The rose-colored tea gown worn by Miss Virginia Norton who comes to the New National Theatre this evening in "The Poor Little Rich Girl," is a Doucet model with Greek lines, draping about Miss Norton's figure in charmingly mysterious ways.

DELIGHTFUL MENU "FOR MYSTIC DAY"

BREAKFAST.
Hot Omelette and Mush with Chopped Dates.
Buttered Scotch Bannocks.
Coffee.

LUNCHEON.
Black Bean Soup in Cups.
Cottage Cheese and Pimento Sandwiches.
Brownies and Hot Cocoa.

DINNER.
Jack-o'-Lanterns.
Browned Chicken with Gravy.
Chestnut Croquettes, Grape Jelly.
Apple and Celery Salad in Apple Shells.
Individual Pumpkin Pie.
Toasted Marshmallows.
Mulled Cider.

The dinner-table can be appropriately decorated at very small expense. For a centerpiece take a medium sized pumpkin and bore holes in a circle around the top to hold as many tall white candles as can be crowded on. On all four sides cut grotesque faces. At each end of the table have small pumpkins followed out and filled with fruit, with clusters of grapes hanging over the sides. At each place have candles in alternate holders of tall, yellow crockets and flat white turnips. The marshmallows may be toasted over the candle flame.

Scotch Bannocks—Two teaspoonfuls of lard, one of sugar and one of salt, mix with half a teaspoonful of milk with half a teaspoonful of oil, sift in the oatmeal. Bake on a griddle—The Housekeeper.

Brownies—Make a loaf chocolate cake in a sheet, and when cold, cut into brown shapes and frost with chocolate. The features may be added with white icing. These will please the children.

Chestnut Croquettes—Remove the shells from one pint of French chestnuts, blanch and cook until soft in one quart of fresh boiling water, then drain, mash and press through a sieve; there should be one cup of the puree. To this add three tablespoonfuls of double cream, one teaspoonful of butter and the yolks of two eggs; season with one-half teaspoonful of salt, a dash of pepper and a little onion juice, then beat in a double boiler until the eggs are set. Turn out on a platter, and when cold form into small croquettes; egg, crumb, and fry in deep fat.

"When Withered Crones Chant Monotones"

What to Serve at Hallowe'en Party

Perhaps no festivity in the whole year lends itself so readily to quaint and amusing table decorations as Hallowe'en. All young girls who are fond of fun should give some sort of a party on the evening of the thirty-first of October and try over again the curious old tricks and fortune telling devices that have been a cause of hilarity for centuries.

The refreshments at these affairs are never elaborate—nuts, cider and apples forming the staples after the old country custom, while dainty sandwiches and fancy cakes should fill in the chinks as it were.

Pumpkins, tiny figures of witches and their familiars, black cats and last, but by no means least, jack-o'-lanterns can be used to adorn the supper table. And even the homely cabbage has for some unknown reason at this season been selected for a table decoration. Last year I was present at a very amusing party where the table was one what one might call a symphony in cabs. The centerpiece was in the shape of a large cabbage, hollowed out and filled with red apples.

GRIMALKIN PARTY ATTRACTIVE AFFAIR

Funny Little Black Cats Cut from Paper Can Be Bought by the Dozen.

Grimalkin, the eerie companion of the sorcerer, makes a splendid suggestion for a Hallowe'en motive and a Grimalkin or a witch cat party can be made very amusing. Specialty for Hallowe'en now come black cats in funny attitudes cut from paper and sold by the dozen. These play an important part in the evening's merry-making. Use big cats of posterish aspect on the walls of the room, and hide the tiny ones all around like nuts for a nut search. On each hidden cat is written in white ink a riddle, the answer to which is a word beginning or ending with the syllable cat. Thus: The Niagara Falls Cat? Cataract. The cat on a raft? Catamaran. The cat with a cold in its head? Catarrh.

The cat in an accident? Catastrophe. The cat with a long tail? Catalogue. The cat underground? Catacombs. When the game is to begin guests receive little cardboard baskets covered with black and yellow crepe paper, and the bell signal having sounded, all hasten away in search of the hidden grimalkins. The player whose basket contains most at the end of ten minutes receives a black posterish cat of plaster filled with bonbons.

Next all gather around the table where paper and pencils are distributed and the object now becomes to see who can guess most of the disguised cats. Each riddle written on the little shapes is accompanied by a number and the answer written down must be accompanied by this number for purposes of identification.

Appropriate Prize.
A pen wiper in the shape of the head of a Hallowe'en grimalkin would make an attractive prize here, and one, moreover, which could be easily fashioned from black and red cloth at home.

For the fortune telling, which is almost necessary on an occasion of this kind, the idea of the witch cat will be very original. Have a room adjoining, or a portion of the parlor itself screened off. On the curtain or screen hang a huge figure of a black cat with a large mouth. The guest who wishes to consult the Oracle slips a piece of paper on which a question is written through a slit in the cat's mouth and Grimalkin answers it.

A moment later the question paper with answer written in invisible ink appears in pussy's mouth and the Hallowe'en will find therein a reply to his query after he has approached the flame of the candle. Many of these answers can be prepared in advance and simply utilized whenever a query is received which the answer will fit sufficiently well. Most of the questions will, of course, be sentimental. Among the answers on hand should be: "Yes." "No." "Slips." Descriptions of imaginary persons of both sexes, the word "Old Maid," "Old Bachelor," and the like. Difficult questions must be answered on the spot of the moment. The invisible ink is not necessary to the success of the game, though it adds to the mystery.

For the Grimalkin table have on of the large black cats made of plush, which are so wonderfully effective on a white cloth. From the cat's mouth have narrow yellow ribbons which are looped in cartwheel formation across the board, each one terminating at a guest's cover, where it is attached to a little skull and crossbones lamp with a glowing candle in it. Have nuts cut the cat shape to go on the side plates, and tiny black cat heads pasted on the water tumblers with the names of the guests written on them in white paint to act as place cards.

On top of which was perched a black paper mache cat. A procession of small, cut the top from each and scoop out the inside into a warm dish. Mash smooth, adding for each potato a piece of butter and a tablespoonful of cream. Season with salt and pepper to taste and whip until light. For every three potatoes whip the white of an egg to a stiff froth and cut lightly into the potato mixture. Refill the potato shells with cream, and bake in a hot oven, heated through and top is browned.

Baked Souffle Potatoes.
Select potatoes of uniform size and bake these until cooked. When cooked cut the top from each and scoop out the inside into a warm dish. Mash smooth, adding for each potato a piece of butter and a tablespoonful of cream. Season with salt and pepper to taste and whip until light. For every three potatoes whip the white of an egg to a stiff froth and cut lightly into the potato mixture. Refill the potato shells with cream, and bake in a hot oven, heated through and top is browned.

THE PUMPKIN PARTY ALWAYS POPULAR

Lends Itself Admirably to Any Plan of Decoration.

Closely associated with Hallowe'en is the pumpkin. By the end of October it has ripened to a rich golden yellow, lending itself admirably to any plan of decoration.

Yellow paper pumpkin blossoms, with their accompanying green leaves, are extremely attractive when used to decorate the room. Cornstalks can be used successfully for the same purpose. The invitations can be made at home with very little trouble. Cut miniature pumpkins from yellow Bristol board or water-color paper and tint them yellow. Do the painting in gold or black.

If your home is surrounded by trees, hang pumpkin lanterns from the branches. If not, have two large pumpkins facing grinning a welcome from either side of the door.

For the shades for the electric globes from yellow crepe paper. This produces a soft, warm light altogether attractive. Weathen the doorways and fireplaces with the pumpkin blossoms. Request the guests to wear yellow costumes suggesting the pumpkin.

For entertainment, fill a bowl with dried pumpkin seeds and provide each guest with a slip of paper. On this is recorded his guess as to the number of seeds contained in the bowl.

An appropriate prize is awarded to the successful "guesser." A consolation prize should also be given.

The word pumpkin should be taken and the guests requested to use the letters contained in the word to form others. The one producing the greatest number is awarded a suitable prize.

Invite every one to draw around the fireplace, or table if your house cannot boast of this attractive feature, and give a large, irregularly shaped ball of yellow wool to one of the guests, requesting him to unwind it slowly while telling an exciting tale of adventure.

When the unwinding discloses a little souvenir the ball is tossed to another, who is obliged to continue the narrative. When the end of the " yarn " is reached and each guest supplied with a gift, announce supper.

of baking-powder, and the whites stiffly whipped of the four eggs. When well mixed, stir in two cupful of nut kernels—hickory nuts or walnuts, well dredged with flour. Bake in a large round loaf. When the cake is in the pan, ready to put in the oven, roll the thimble, the dime and the ring in flour and push them down into the middle of the loaf, putting each a good distance from the other. Bake carefully, keeping the cake covered with paper during the first twenty minutes it is in the oven. Uncover and brown and test with a straw to be sure it is done before you take it from the oven. Better let the cake cool in the tin before turning it out. Frost the cake with white icing, cupful of molasses and one-half a cupful of brown sugar till the sugar is melted. Dissolve one teaspoonful of soda in a little warm water, stir it quickly into the hot molasses, and add one-half a cupful of butter and one pint of flour and one teaspoonful of cinnamon, one and a half of ginger and half the amount of nutmeg. Add enough more flour to roll out thin. Cut out and bake in a quick oven.

CANDY RECIPES FOR HALLOWEEN

Revels of the Mysterious Night Are Not Complete Without Goodies.

Perhaps some of you would like some candy recipes for the Hallowe'en revels.

Kisses.
Whites of two eggs, 1 pound confectioners' sugar, vanilla.

Beat the eggs and sugar thoroughly. The secret of the success of this delicate kisses lies in the thoroughness of this beating. Flavor to taste. Cook in a covered blazer.

Fudge.
There is no end to the variety of fudges. Here is the recipe for a particularly good one: One-quarter cupful of butter; 1 cup of brown sugar, 1 cup of white sugar, one-quarter cup of molasses, one-half cup of cream, two squares of chocolate, one and one-half teaspoonfuls of vanilla.

Mix the cream, molasses, white and brown sugar; add to the butter, which must previously have been melted. Bring to a boil and boil vigorously for two or three minutes, stirring rapidly all the while. Add the grated or "scraped" chocolate. Boil for five more minutes, stirring rapidly at first, then more slowly. Remove from the fire and add the flavoring. Stir until thickened. Pour into buttered pans and set away to cool. Dates or nuts, chopped, can be added.

Fondant.
One pound confectioners' sugar, one teaspoonful of cold water, one saltspoonful of cream of tartar.

Stir all three ingredients together. Boil until it forms a jellylike mass, when dropped in cold water. Remove from the stove and let stand 15 minutes. Beat vigorously until soft, creamy consistency is reached. To the cream may be added chopped nuts or fruit, or it may be used to stuff dates or figs.

Walnut Creams.
Two cups white sugar, one-third cup of milk.

Boil together for seven minutes, then remove from the stove and beat vigorously. Add to this two pounds of chopped English walnuts. These must be stirred well into the cream. The candy must be cut or molded into forms.

Cocoanut Candy.
One cup grated cocoanut 1-1/2 pounds granulated sugar, 1-1/4 pound solid raisins, 1-3/4 pound of almonds, one pint pecans, 1-2 cup of chopped walnuts, 1-1/2 pound of chopped figs.

Boil sugar and milk of cocoanut together for five minutes. Add the grated cocoanut. Boil for ten minutes more, stirring constantly. Pour half of this mixture into a pan. Into the other half stir the raisins, almonds, pecans, walnuts, and figs. Be sure that the mixing is complete; then pour this over the portion which is already in the pan.

Surprise Stuffed Figs.
Boil the figs until they are very soft. Open while they are still hot. Put inside of each the surprise—a marshmallow, a piece of nut, and a cherry. Close the figs again; roll them in powdered sugar and set aside to cool.

Hallowe'en Fruit Cake.
Cream one-half a cupful of butter and one cupful of granulated sugar, then add to it one cupful of sour milk in which one teaspoonful of soda has been dissolved; then mix in two cupfuls of flour, a pinch of salt, one teaspoonful of ground cloves, one scant teaspoonful of nutmeg, two teaspoonfuls of ground cinnamon, one-half cupful of seeded raisins, one-half cupful of currants, a little finely cut up orange peel, also a little citron cut up fine. Some cut up figs or dates can also be added—the more fruit the better. Lastly, add half a cupful of chopped nut meats. The fruit must have been soaked well through it to prevent sinking. Bake in a moderate oven about one hour.

The Activities of Women

Feminine Sex the World Over.

By WINIFRED SHORT.

Queen Wilhelmina is an astronomer.

There are 20,000 more women than men in London.

New York City has a servant maids club with 20 members.

According to statistics a woman loves strongest at the age of thirty.

Of the 200 women chemists in England, twenty own their own business.

Weddings in Brooklyn are increasing, but the birth rate is decreasing.

Five women State factory inspectors are now doing duty in Philadelphia.

The number of women physicians in England have doubled in the past ten years.

The chief food and drug commissioner of Texas has appointed a woman as his first assistant.

There are 16,000 working girls in Philadelphia who are living in furnished rooms away from home.

Rumania's women have taken violently to sport and aspire to lead all Europe both physically and mentally.

One of the most successful women decorators in the profession in Miss

Elise de Wolfe, of New York and Versailles.

Although she is eighty-seven years of age, Empress Eugenie is still very active and retains her faculties and strength.

Among those who attended the national convention of rural mail carriers in Indianapolis recently were many women.

Fifty expert needle women are employed at the Brooklyn navy yard, where they are kept busy making American flags.

A Georgia girl has sold enough tomato worms to fishermen, for bait, to pay for working and harvesting her crop of tomatoes.

In England and Wales there are 1,125 women who cannot hope to get husbands, this being the number of females in excess of males.

In an effort to cut down the cost of living several St. Louis society girls have formed a sewing and millinery club.

Sarah Bernhardt, the famous French actress, is now an innkeeper, having purchased a new home. She rents out the rooms in her old villa.

Rome has a bureau for the care of wives and children of men who have gone to America and who cannot or do not send back funds to support their families.

In seven counties of California the registration of women for the first election at which they were privileged to vote amounted to between 90 and 99 per cent.

Miss Edith Pierce, Philadelphia's only woman street inspector, is making a tour of the city addressing housewives on how to keep the city clean.

Miss Reita Tourison, known as Philadelphia's woman of adventure, is assistant superintendent of the Philadelphia aquarium, where she is also known as a fish specialist.

Mrs. Everett Colby, wife of the progressive candidate for Governor in New Jersey, will assist her husband in his fight going on a stump speaking tour of the State.

Miss Tonda, head of the Japan College for Women, is now in this country looking for ideas that can be used to increase the efficiency of the women colleges in her native country.

By marrying Eugene Boland, of Holland, the former Inez Millholland may lose her right to practice law in this country, as she is now amenable to the laws of the country of her husband's birth.

Mrs. Elizabeth Sterling, who has just assumed the position of County Superintendent of Schools, at Vancouver, Wash., is the first woman to hold such a position since Washington became a State.

Mrs. Frederick Penfield, of Philadelphia, will probably pay a larger income tax than any titled or untitled woman in Europe or this country. Her income is estimated to be no less than $250,000 a year.

After giving up a life of gaiety to become a nun, last year, Miss Vella Handlin, the daughter of a St. Louis millionaire, has started society by resuming the life of a nun, and announces she will again enter society.

Five hundred girls are doing police duty in a quiet way in New York City, where they are watching the dance halls and trying in every way to keep the weaker ones of their sex from going astray.

Miss Jessie Ackerman, who has just returned from a sight-seeing tour around the world, studying the social status of women, is the only woman ever admitted as a fellow of the Royal Scottish Geographical Society.

So as to qualify herself to become her husband's law partner, Mrs. H. S. McGuire, wife of Congressman McGuire, of Oklahoma, has entered the law school of the George Washington University, where she will take a three-year course.

Women stockholders in the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad outnumber the men by 1,000, and the same conditions prevail among the Boston and Maine stockholders, where being 2,000 women as against 2,000 men who own stock.

Though she is only twelve years of age, Christabell Millgate is Lady Mayoress of the town of Newport, England. Her father is Mayor and her mother being dead she performs the duties of her position on all public occasions.

HAVE OPEN FIRE FOR FAGOT PARTY

The very name of A Fagot Party carries with it an irresistible desire to know something more about it. It must be perfectly fascinating. To carry this out, an open fireplace is a necessity, unless the weather is so warm that a fire may be built out of doors. On the invitations summoning the guests to the fagot party a warning is given that each one will be asked to do a stunt, and very emphatically underlined, no excuses will be accepted.

When the guests have all arrived each one is given a bundle of fagots and told that when his turn comes he must add his fagots to the fire already burning brightly in the grate. The fagots are placed and be prepared to perform for the benefit of the company.

The order of the performers was determined by drawing lots. The lots were beautifully decorated cards, each stamped recently. If any have missed the formula, here it is: One ounce powdered soapstone, dissolved in one-half pint of water, is put on at night like cold cream and washed off in the morning.

Many had had many favorable letters from those who have tried the wrinkle-removing face bath which I recommended recently. If any have missed the formula, here it is: One ounce powdered soapstone, dissolved in one-half pint of water, is put on at night like cold cream and washed off in the morning.

Many had had many favorable letters from those who have tried the wrinkle-removing face bath which I recommended recently. If any have missed the formula, here it is: One ounce powdered soapstone, dissolved in one-half pint of water, is put on at night like cold cream and washed off in the morning.

Many had had many favorable letters from those who have tried the wrinkle-removing face bath which I recommended recently. If any have missed the formula, here it is: One ounce powdered soapstone, dissolved in one-half pint of water, is put on at night like cold cream and washed off in the morning.

Many had had many favorable letters from those who have tried the wrinkle-removing face bath which I recommended recently. If any have missed the formula, here it is: One ounce powdered soapstone, dissolved in one-half pint of water, is put on at night like cold cream and washed off in the morning.

Many had had many favorable letters from those who have tried the wrinkle-removing face bath which I recommended recently. If any have missed the formula, here it is: One ounce powdered soapstone, dissolved in one-half pint of water, is put on at night like cold cream and washed off in the morning.

Many had had many favorable letters from those who have tried the wrinkle-removing face bath which I recommended recently. If any have missed the formula, here it is: One ounce powdered soapstone, dissolved in one-half pint of water, is put on at night like cold cream and washed off in the morning.

Many had had many favorable letters from those who have tried the wrinkle-removing face bath which I recommended recently. If any have missed the formula, here it is: One ounce powdered soapstone, dissolved in one-half pint of water, is put on at night like cold cream and washed off in the morning.

Girlish Complexion Now Easily Acquired

"A skin of blended snow, cream and rose" is the way an Ohio correspondent describes her newly acquired complexion. She is one who has adopted mercurochrome in place of cosmetics, massage, steaming, and other methods. Many who have tried this marvelous wax report that its effects are quite different from those of any other treatment. It produces a complexion of exquisite girlish naturalness, rather than one bearing evidence of having been artificially "made over." One that is indeed "Nature's own," the result of gradually absorbing dead particles of surface skin, permitting the younger, healthier skin beneath to show itself, and giving its pores a chance to breathe. Mercurochrome, procurable at any drug store in original one-ounce packages, is put on at night like cold cream and washed off in the morning.

Many had had many favorable letters from those who have tried the wrinkle-removing face bath which I recommended recently. If any have missed the formula, here it is: One ounce powdered soapstone, dissolved in one-half pint of water, is put on at night like cold cream and washed off in the morning.

Many had had many favorable letters from those who have tried the wrinkle-removing face bath which I recommended recently. If any have missed the formula, here it is: One ounce powdered soapstone, dissolved in one-half pint of water, is put on at night like cold cream and washed off in the morning.

Many had had many favorable letters from those who have tried the wrinkle-removing face bath which I recommended recently. If any have missed the formula, here it is: One ounce powdered soapstone, dissolved in one-half pint of water, is put on at night like cold cream and washed off in the morning.

Many had had many favorable letters from those who have tried the wrinkle-removing face bath which I recommended recently. If any have missed the formula, here it is: One ounce powdered soapstone, dissolved in one-half pint of water, is put on at night like cold cream and washed off in the morning.

Many had had many favorable letters from those who have tried the wrinkle-removing face bath which I recommended recently. If any have missed the formula, here it is: One ounce powdered soapstone, dissolved in one-half pint of water, is put on at night like cold cream and washed off in the morning.

Many had had many favorable letters from those who have tried the wrinkle-removing face bath which I recommended recently. If any have missed the formula, here it is: One ounce powdered soapstone, dissolved in one-half pint of water, is put on at night like cold cream and washed off in the morning.

Many had had many favorable letters from those who have tried the wrinkle-removing face bath which I recommended recently. If any have missed the formula, here it is: One ounce powdered soapstone, dissolved in one-half pint of water, is put on at night like cold cream and washed off in the morning.

Many had had many favorable letters from those who have tried the wrinkle-removing face bath which I recommended recently. If any have missed the formula, here it is: One ounce powdered soapstone, dissolved in one-half pint of water, is put on at night like cold cream and washed off in the morning.

Many had had many favorable letters from those who have tried the wrinkle-removing face bath which I recommended recently. If any have missed the formula, here it is: One ounce powdered soapstone, dissolved in one-half pint of water, is put on at night like cold cream and washed off in the morning.

Many had had many favorable letters from those who have tried the wrinkle-removing face bath which I recommended recently. If any have missed the formula, here it is: One ounce powdered soapstone, dissolved in one-half pint of water, is put on at night like cold cream and washed off in the morning.

Many had had many favorable letters from those who have tried the wrinkle-removing face bath which I recommended recently. If any have missed the formula, here it is: One ounce powdered soapstone, dissolved in one-half pint of water, is put on at night like cold cream and washed off in the morning.

Many had had many favorable letters from those who have tried the wrinkle-removing face bath which I recommended recently. If any have missed the formula, here it is: One ounce powdered soapstone, dissolved in one-half pint of water, is put on at night like cold cream and washed off in the morning.

Many had had many favorable letters from those who have tried the wrinkle-removing face bath which I recommended recently. If any have missed the formula, here it is: One ounce powdered soapstone, dissolved in one-half pint of water, is put on at night like cold cream and washed off in the morning.

Many had had many favorable letters from those who have tried the wrinkle-removing face bath which I recommended recently. If any have missed the formula, here it is: One ounce powdered soapstone, dissolved in one-half pint of water, is put on at night like cold cream and washed off in the morning.

Many had had many favorable letters from those who have tried the wrinkle-removing face bath which I recommended recently. If any have missed the formula, here it is: One ounce powdered soapstone, dissolved in one-half pint of water, is put on at night like cold cream and washed off in the morning.

Many had had many favorable letters from those who have tried the wrinkle-removing face bath which I recommended recently. If any have missed the formula, here it is: One ounce powdered soapstone, dissolved in one-half pint of water, is put on at night like cold cream and washed off in the morning.

Many had had many favorable letters from those who have tried the wrinkle-removing face bath which I recommended recently. If any have missed the formula, here it is: One ounce powdered soapstone, dissolved in one-half pint of water, is put on at night like cold cream and washed off in the morning.